

The Oregon New Sanctuary Movement is an interfaith coalition of religious leaders and congregations, committed to lifting up the voices of our immigrant brothers and sister & working for just and humane immigration reform & the transformation of the social and economic systems that perpetuate global poverty and drive much of the migration to the US.

The Oregon New Sanctuary Movement presents:

What's at Stake?

Immigration and the 2008 Elections

An interactive forum designed especially for members of Portland's diverse faith communities.

Together we'll analyze the potential impacts of Ballot Measure 58, the widespread implications of the Columbia County anti-immigrant ballot initiatives, candidates' positions on immigration issues and more.

We'll hear the voices and stories of people whose lives will be directly affected by the choices we make on our ballots this fall – and by the decisions on immigration policies that elected officials will face at city, state and national levels.

Light refreshments & simultaneous interpretation in Spanish will be provided.

Sunday, October 26th
